"Commercially produced photographic paper comes with a set of limitations—right, it's labeled black and white paper—but, the truth is, there's color in there, you just have to force it out."

- Marco Breuer

The Lodge at Allied Works is pleased to present Darkroom In Use, an exhibition of new works by Jennifer Bacon. Though vastly different from the norm and expected of darkroom photography, this showcase relies on the rich history of the black and white photograph. By going back to the fundamentals of photography through years of experience in the darkroom, this exhibition encompasses the subversion of conventional technique, requirements, and practices within a traditional black and white darkroom.
